Safety and the Supervisor

TWO-DAY COURSE

Supervisors are the key to safety in a workplace.

Often, the responsibility falls on them to communicate health and safety information between management and frontline workers.

This course helps supervisors plan, organize, lead and control while providing safety training, resources, support and adequate supervision.

The Basics & The Benefits

This Safety Services Canada course aims to improve the supervisor's regard for a safety culture – specifically the safe knowledge, attitudes and behaviours of everyone in an organization.

At the end of the course, supervisors will be able to:

- Understand, create and enforce workplace health and safety programming
- Fulfill legal requirements for health and safety
- Know duties and those of employers and employees
- Understand and perform due diligence
- Lead using better time management and more effective communication
- Properly train and coach workers in the safe performance of their duties
- Conduct risk assessments and safety inspections

Through a combination of discussion, exercises and lecture, the course focuses on the role of supervisors in relation to legal requirements, occupational health and safety programs, effective leadership and risk assessment.

Safety Services Canada implements its training programs with collaboration from each of its eight provincial members. Together, the service providers create insightful, certified programs to keep Canadians safe – at work, at home, on the road and at play.
